They hail from a world where all is heavenly. They belong to an age which was truly golden. Whatever the world had lost is contained in their bosoms and in their smile, which shines with the purest gold. Little girls across the world hid and hid their pictures, from their mothers, to magicians, to peddlers and put them on their walls, so calling one day to be as grand as Barbie, as tall as the tallest girl in their grade, and then dream of emulating her someday. Not their grade, their joy, their source of inspiration.
