VEENA

The veena is a stringed musical instrument that has been an integral part of Indian classical music for centuries. It is known for its melodious and soulful sound. The instrument is typically played by women and is often used in religious and cultural performances. The veena has a long neck with frets and a large, rounded body. It is played by plucking the strings with the right hand while the left hand is used to press the frets. The veena is considered one of the most beautiful and expressive instruments in Indian music.
