

NARI

SHABNAM

NARI

Verdant Grass

In the 1950s, amidst the stifling trends of the fashion industry, someone decided the world was more than they were told, and on that note, they set a goal. At the end of the day, they were designers, creating fashion and giving a personal statement. In the 1950s, fashion was not only about form and function, it was about the values, attitudes, and personalities, and that is how we grew and thrive.

NARI

SHABNAM

Presenting To You Our New Catalogue

SHABNAM

-: TOP :-

PURE MUSLIN VISCOUS JACARD
WITH SIROSKI WORK

-: BOTTOM :-

VISCOUS REYON

-: DUPATTA :-

PURE MUSLIN VISCOUS JACARD

NARI

Verdant Grass

In the 19th century, the textile industry dominated the world more than they ever did, and in the mid-20th century, the textile industry in India was largely making fabrics and garments a mass production. In the 1970s, green did not only mean grass, but it was the symbol of the nation's struggle for independence, and this is how we've come to use it today.

NARI

SHABNAM

44001

44002

44003

44004

44005

44006

